Brilliant Weddings.—The marriage of Miss Susan Katharine Brune to Mr. Blanchard Randall took place at St. Paul's Church, Charles and Saratoga streets, at six o'clock yesterday afternoon. The bride is the daughter of the late Frederick W. Brune, long an eminent member of the Baltimore bar, and the groom is the son of the late Alexander Randall, of Annapolis, at one time attorney-general of Maryland. The ushers were Mr. Parratt, of New York, and Messrs. Thomas B. Mackall, R. F. Brent, J. B. Noel Wyatt, F. Donaldson, J. H. Morison, Robert Riddell Brown and Frederick J. Brown. The bridesmaids, who were dressed in white, carrying bouquets of different colors, were Miss Eliot, of Boston; Miss Bessie Randall, of Annapolis; Miss Susan K. Jones, Miss Mary L. Brown, Miss Sally White, Miss Emily R. Marshall, Miss Alice Morison and Miss Louise Dawson. The best man was Dr. A. Burton Randall, of Philadelphia, brother of the groom. The bride wore white silk and lace, and carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley. She was given away by her brother, Mr. Frederick W. Brune. The altar was brilliant with flowers and candles. The marriage ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. J. S. B. Hodges, rector of St. Paul's, Rev. Dr. Brand and Rev. Alfred Harding also being in the chancel. There was a brilliant gathering of society people, and many of the ladies were in full dress. Among the gentlemen present were Judge Hagner, of Washington; Dr. Shattuck, of Boston; J. Wirt Randall and J. Schaaf Stockett, of Annapolis; Rev. Dr. C. K. Nelson; President Gilman, of Johns Hopkins University; Mr. N. H. Morison, provost Peabody Institute; Mr. S. Teackle Wallis, Mr. W. H. Brune, Mr. Charles G. Kerr, Mr. John Gill and Mr. Bradley S. Johnson. After the wedding a reception was held at the residence of Mrs. Brune, mother of the bride, No 16 North avenue, to which the relatives and friends were invited.

An interesting matrimonial event occurred at the First Reformed Church, Calvert street, near Read, last evening, when two sisters were united in marriage with two well-known young gentlemen. All are members of the choir of the church. The first couple were Mr. Harry R. Beans and Miss Barbara Buchheimer, and the second Mr. Carson Schumacher and Miss Minnie Buchheimer. The brides are the daughters of Mr. Peter Buchheimer. They entered the church leaning on the arms of the bridegrooms, and preceded by the ushers, Messrs. George Buchheimer, Harry Schumacher, Alonzo Merrett and W. J. Ewing, proceeded up the aisle to the chancel while the organ pealed forth the merry strains of a wedding march. The Rev. Joel T. Rossiter, pastor of the church, performed the double ceremony. The church was crowded. After a brief wedding tour the two young couples will go housekeeping together on Linden avenue, near Preston street.

Mr. Holland's Bad Bargain.—The case of Samuel Black vs. John C. Holland, which was begun in the Superior Court on Wednesday, was argued and taken under advisement yesterday by Judge Brown. The question before the court is whether a judgment on demurrer rendered in favor of Mr. Holland by Judge Dobbin in the same court in March, 1879, shall be set aside and the case reopened. The suit originally grew out of a real estate transaction, in which Mr. Holland exchaged his country seat near Catonsville, valued at $20,000, for three dwellings owned by Mr. Black, on St. Paul street, near Saratoga, in one of which Hon. Henry Winter Davis lived. Mr. Orville Horwitz held a mortgage of $6,000 on each house. The mortgages were foreclosed, and the houses did not bring enough to pay them by nearly $2,000. Mr. Black was compelled to pay the deficiency, and brought suit for the amount against Mr. Holland, who already had nothing to show for his country place. There was no express agreement who was to pay the mortgage debt, and Judge Dobbin decided that Mr. Black could not recover. Since then the Court of Appeals has decided, in the case of George vs. Andrews & White, that the purchaser of property assumes the payment of the mortgage debt, and the motion to reopen is made on that authority. Judge Brown said he would act just as he knew his predecessor would act if now on the bench, and conform his ruling to that of the Appellate Court. On the question of striking out the judgment, Judge Brown said he was not quite certain, and desired to hear from counsel. Mr. George M. Gill, for Mr. Holland, spoke against striking out the judgment, saying that if that could be done in five years, it could be done in fifty or a hundred years, and cases would never be decided. Mr. George Hawkins Williams, for Mr. Black, contended that until there was a verdict of a jury there was no final adjudication of the case. Judge Brown reserved his decision.

A Playmate of Johns Hopkins.—At No. 3 North Spring street, in two rooms on the first floor, which are kept as neat and tidy as old age and humble circumstances will permit, live Isaac Queen, colored, and his wife, aged respectively 82 and 75 years. The old man has partially lost his eyesight and his wife her hearing. Old Isaac sometimes talks of the days when he played with the late Johns Hopkins, with whom he was reared on the old family place in Anne Arundel county. He says he has worked side by side with the great philanthropist at the plow, with the hoe and at other agricultural duties. Isaac says "Mister Johns knows what it was to work hard." When Johns Hopkins had become a wealthy business man Isaac was called to perform duties at Clifton and other places owned by Mr. Hopkins. He says he was changed about so much that he left Mr. Hopkins and engaged with Mr. James Bates in the foundry. At this employment his eyesight was injured by the glare from the heated iron which he assisted to pour into the moulding flasks. During the war he became filled with a desire to assist in freeing his race. Being too old to handle the musket, he helped to build the fortifications on McKim's Hill, in this city, and was employed in Virginia constructing military roads. The aged man speaks in affectionate terms of the kindness of the two families for whom he has worked. They contribute to his comfort, and make personal visits to the aged couple to understand their wants. "If dey ever stop," said Isaac, revolving his almost sightless orbs up to the ceiling, "if dey ebber do, de Great Marster will take care ob me while I'm 'live." He has but two children living, and "nine or ten head of grandchildren and great-grandchildren." Isaac is a member of the Bethel Church, on Saratoga street. He has been a church-member for 25 years.

A Missionary to India.—The Rev. A. W. Rudisill, of the M. E. Church, formerly presiding elder of the West Baltimore district, left yesterday for York, Pa., where he once lived, en route to New York, whence he sails on Saturday on the City of Rome for India. He was accompanied by his wife and a 6-year-old son of Dr. M. E. Rankin, of Woodberry, who is a brother-in-law of Mrs. Rudisill. The child's mother died some time ago. Mr. Rudisill will connect himself with the South India Conference, and will work among the people known as Eurasians, a mixed race of Europeans and Asiatics: that is, a people where the husband speaks English and the wife Hindoo, or vice versa. He goes without any salary being assured him, but only gets what the people among whom he labors choose to give him. The Missionary Society pays his expenses going over there. They have regular places to preach, but not always in churches, the market-houses and street corners being often used. Mr. Rudisill is not in very robust health, but it is expected that the trip will do him good. If the work suits him and he sees a good result to his labors he may not return for many years.

Wilson Post Guard.—Wilson Post, No. 1, G. A. R., has organized a post guard, with a membership of forty men, and have been drilling regularly for two or three months at Wilson Post Hall. On Wednesday night the election of officers took place, and resulted as follows: G. B. Creamer, captain; A. C. Evans, first lieutenant; H. C. Mackie, second lieutenant; James G. Horn, first sergeant; A. J. Crocket, second sergeant; D. T. Seaton, third sergeant; G. Smith, fourth sergeant; P. J. Edelman, fifth sergeant; corps, Jas. Garrett and Wm. H. Blaney. The guard is armed with the best breech-loading rifles. They expect to attend the encampment next June at Portland, Maine.

The Second Largest Cargo of Coffee.—There arrived yesterday in the Baltimore barkentine Glad Tidings, Capt. Elijah Bonner, the largest cargo of coffee from Rio Janeiro, with one exception, that has ever been brought to the port in a sailing vessel. The Glad Tidings brought 14,116 bags. The ship David Stewart some years ago brought 14,000 bags. The Glad Tidings is a new vessel, and the present is her first cargo.

The Friends' Yearly Meeting.—At the morning session of the Friends' Yearly Meeting yesterday the report of the standing committee on education was presented. It was quite a lengty paper, giving statistics of the schools and the pupils, together with how many of the latter are the children of members and how many are not. The schools are very popular, and are mostly in flourishing condition. Quite a large school was opened in Washington last year, on I street. At Sandy Springs, Md., a school building was erected last year, costing $2,500. The schools in Baltimore, Cecil, Harford and Carroll counties are all in a satisfactory condition. The total number of children of members attending is 749. Of the 335 children who attend the Lombard-street school, 55 are the children of members. The committee asked for $300 for incidental expenses of schools, which was granted. In the afternoon the committee on the treasurer's accounts reported a considerable balance in the treasury; they nominated the present incumbent, Edwin Blackburn, of Baltimore, for reappointment. He was elected. A thousand dollars was ordered to be raised for the incidental expenses of the Yearly Meeting of the ensuing year. The meeting has about $27,000 in invested funds, the interest of which is applied to educational and other purposes. About $1,100 per annum is used as an educational fund, and the committee appointed to disburse it reported aiding 11 schools, in which there were 165 children of members. It also aided five persons preparing to teach.

The standing committee on philanthropic labor, to co-operate with similar committees of the other Yearly Meetings, also reported. This committee has under consideration the subject of education in the Southern States. The Philadelphia Yearly Meeting has established schools in the South, principally for colored children, but the whites are also cared for where possible. The subject of selling the Lombard street property and removing further up town was referred to a representative committee consisting of thirty members of each sex, with full power to act. The representative committee is the executive body of the Yearly Meeting, and has charge of all real estate, personal property, and temporal matters generally. It sits only in the interim of the Yearly Meetings. Several other committees also reported. A memorial of the late Wm. John Thomas, of Montgomery county, an elder of the society, was read. The meeting then adjourned to reassemble on the first Saturday preceding the last Monday of next October.

The representative committee held a meeting last night, at which the various sub-committees were appointed and their work mapped out as far as practicable.

First Things in Baltimore.—In regard to the claim of Cincinnati to the first paid fire department a reader says: "Some confusion may have been occasioned by the fact that Cincinnati had a steam but not a full-paid fire department as early as 1853. Mr. J. T. Ford, president of the city council in 1858, described it in his advocacy of our present paid system, and gave full credit to Mr. Miles Greenwood, of Cincinnati, as the pioneer of the reform. Mr. Greenwood, without any business profit built the first steam fire engine at his shops, and ran with the machine. He told Mr. Ford, as was stated by him in the discussion here, that his engine 'threw water, but didn't throw bricks.' Rioting at fires was frequent in that day. Mr. Ford's appeal evidently influenced the passage of the bill, and he afterwards secured the naming of an engine 'The Miles Greenwood.'"

A subscriber writes: "As to Mount Hope, it was a school on the college principle in 1843-'44, under the direction of Mr. Treadwell; it was sold to the Sisters evidently in 1844, not 1840, for asylum uses, and was occupied probably in 1844 for the first time by the insane. Among the pupils, as I remember, during the last year of the school, were John and Thorndyke Brooks, sons of Chauncy Brooks; Edward Austin, son of the member of the firm of Hiss & Austin; a youth named Palmer, from Montevideo, South America; John T. Ford, &c."

In regard to John Sleeper Clarke, the item should have read that Clarke, "who was born in Baltimore in 1833, made his first appearance at the Howard Atheneum."

Susan Peyton Randolph, widow of the late Col. James Innes Randolph, died yesterday at her home in Loudoun county, Va. Mrs. Randolph was the daughter of General Addison Armistead, a brother of Col. George Armistead, of Fort McHenry fame. Gen. Addison Armistead was engaged in the defense of Savannah, and received wounds then from which he died shortly afterward. Her mother was a Miss Peyton. She was born near Winchester, Va., and spent a great deal of her childhood at "Ben Lomond," the old country seat of Gen. Walker Armistead, near the Blue Ridge mountains. She married at the age of 18 Col. James Innes Randolph, then a student in Winchester, and who was the son of Peyton Randolph, of Wilton. All of her Armistead relatives were conspicuous in military conflicts from the revolution down to the late war, when the last soldier of note in the family—Gen. Lewis Armistead—was killed at Gettysburg in the charge of Pickett's division. She sent six sons into the Southern army. The family was completely broken up by the invasion or Northern troops into Virginia and she went to Richmond. After the war she came back to Northern Virginia, where she has since lived, at her home "Woodside." Her children and grandchildren are scattered here and there over the United States. Major Innes Randolph, one of her sons, lives in Baltimore.

Railroad Matters.—The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company, it is understood, will on Sunday next put in effect a new autumn and winter schedule for passenger trains. The withdrawal of their trains from the Pennsylvania lines between Baltimore and New York will cause some changes in the time between Baltimore and the West. The schedule, it is said, will include some marked quickening of the time by trains, on which the number of coaches will be limited and only the regular rates of fare will be charged. The officials of the company say their road bed has been placed in excellent order and fast time can be made with ease.

The officials of the Baltimore and Potomac Railroad expect that the details for their operation of the new Catonsville Short Line will soon be completed. The schedules are being arranged at the superintendent's office in Wilmington, and the understanding is that the trains will be running between Baltimore and Catonsville by November 15, if not an earlier day.

The Germicide Company.—Col. G. W. Alexander, sanitary engineer, formerly of the United States engineer corps, has been tendered the position of chief engineer and general manager of the Germicide Company. He has accepted the position, and workmen are engaged fitting up the workshops and offices. The directors of the company are J. M. Denison, president; I. H. Dixon, secretary and treasurer; James A. Gary, Henry Janes, B. T. Busby. The Germicide is attracting attention in all the large cities of the north and in Europe, especially since the cholera has made its appearance. The system of drainage from the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad office, Baltimore and Calvert streets; the Abell Building, the Chamber of Commerce and other buildings is the work of Colonel Alexander.

Property Sales.—Wm. Seemuller & Co., auctioneers, yesterday sold for the executors of Ann McKim Handy the lot No. 22 West Eager street, 23 feet by 119¼ feet, ground rent $132 25, improved by a commodious three-story and basement brick dwelling-house, to Randolph H. McKim, Mary R. McKim and Margaret T. McKim for $5,000.

Matthews & Kirkland, auctioneers, sold for Geo. W. Lindsay & Son, agents for the owner, the lot 18 by 57½ feet, improved by a three-story dwelling, with two-story back building, No. 179 North Paca street, ground rent $40, to Mrs. Bridget C. Walsh for $1,575. Also, for the owner, Niles & Wolff, attorneys, the lot 20 by 93 feet, No. 51 North Gilmor street, improved by a three-story brick dwelling, with back building, ground rent $100, to Mrs. Suman for $800.

The Rain continued in Baltimore and throughout this section of country yesterday, and when it ceased last evening the rainfall for the day was reported as 46-100ths of an inch at the signal office. From midnight of Monday, when the rain commenced, and including that of Tuesday, Wednesday and yesterday, the rainfall aggregated 69-100ths of an inch. This is not much for three days of rain, but it came down in a drizzle and soaked into the ground, and has done a great deal of good in the country. The rain was general yesterday in the New England and Middle States, and was reported at several stations on the South Atlantic coast. Fair and cooler weather is expected for Baltimore today. The total rainfall for October has been 1.41 inches.

Transfers of Captains.—The following changes have been made in the commanders of the steamers of the Merchants and Miners' Transportation Company: Captain Hallett, from the Alleghany to the new steamer Chatham; Capt. Taylor, from the William Crane to the Alleghany; Capt. Billups, from the McClellan to the William Crane. Mr. Snow, chief officer of the Wm. Kennedy, has been promoted to the command of the McClellan; Capt. Solomon Howes has been detached from the Decatur Miller and been assigned to Boston as agent in charge for the company in that city. The Chatham is expected to take her place on the line the latter part of November.

Motherless Girls.—Victoria Miller, Rose Miller and Mary Miller, sisters, aged about 16, 14 and 12 years, were before Justice Cashmyer at the central police station yesterday, charged with being minors without proper guardianship. They live with their father on Albemarle street, and are left entirely alone when he is at work. The Rev. Edmund Didier, of St. Vincent's Catholic Church, who caused their arrest, thought they should be placed under proper restraint. They were all neatly and comfortably dressed, and were not of vicious appearance. Their father could not be found yesterday, and pending his appearance they are held for a further hearing today.

Hallowe'en.—Tonight is Hallowe'en, the vigil of Hallowmas or the eve of All Saints. It was a time formerly peculiarly invested with the idea in the popular mind of the prevalence of supernatural influences, when spirits walked abroad and the aid of fairies was invoked by youthful lovers in mystic rites. In these times Hallowe'en is made the occasion of mischievous pranks by the young.

The Aged Women's Home.—The thirty-third anniversary of the Aged Women's Home was pleasantly celebrated at that institution, on Lexington street, near Calhoun, yesterday. The old ladies of the home, together with their equally venerable friends of the Aged Men's Home, met in the main hall and listened to pleasant addresses by the Rev. Messrs. T. D. Anderson, of the Seventh Baptist Church, and Wm. F. Slocum, of the First Congregational Church. Rev. Jacob A. Lefevre, of Franklin Square Presbyterian Church, presided, and paid a beautiful tribute to the memory of Miss Mary Purviance, one of the founders of the institution, and its first president, and also to that of her successor, Mrs. Henry Patterson. The children of the Baltimore Orphan Asylum also attended, and by their sweet singing contributed much to the general enjoyment of the celebration. Mrs. Judson Brown presided at the organ. After the entertainment the old ladies were treated to an excellent dinner.

Highwaymen Sent to the Penitentiary.—Joseph Wall and John Kane were convicted yesterday in the Criminal Court of assaulting with intent to rob Mr. Aquilla Harryman, and sentenced by Judge Phelps to two years in the penitentiary. Mr. Harryman, who is in the seventy-seventh year of his age, was about entering his house, No. 248 East Monument street, on September 30, with $210 in a bag with which to pay off the hands in Baltimore Cemetery, of which he is superintendent. It was in evidence that the two men approached Mr. Harryman from behind and caught hold of him as he was on his steps, about noon, and pulled him back. The bag of money fell on the sidewalk and Mr. Harryman defended himself with his umbrella. Wall ran and called out to Kane "to grab the money and come on, and quit fooling." The men escaped, but were arrested about two hours afterwards by Sergeant Ryan on another charge of robbery. They are said to be from Philadelphia.

A Suit on a Trustee's Bond.—The case of the State, use of Henry D. Loney, trustee, against Daniel J. Hubbard and Augustus Hillman, bondsmen for John William Willson, trustee, was placed on trial yesterday in the Superior Court, Judge Brown. The suit is to recover $1,499 83 said to have been received by Mr. Willson for the sale of city stock belonging to the estate of Caroline A. Sadler in a proceeding in the Circuit Court in the case pending between Peter Greenbury Willson and others and James A. Clark and others, and also $1,000 for a piece of property on East Eager street belonging to the same estate. Both sales were made under orders from the Circuit Court, and it is alleged that none of the money has been paid over by the trustee. The bond is dated September 11, 1880, and is for $2,000. Mr. Hubbard makes no answer to the suit, and Mr. Hillman says he did not sign any such bond. The case was not concluded.

Trouble in a Colored Lodge.—Judge Fisher yesterday granted an injunction restraining the Eutaw Savings Bank of Baltimore from paying out of any funds in its possession belonging to Nehemiah Pasture, No. 3, of the Ancient Benevolent Order of Brothers and Sisters, Sons and Daughters of Esdras of Baltimore City, whether payable to the order of John L. Mason, Louisa Truman and Chas. H. Johnson or others, until further order of the court, and also against D. V. A. Henry, Arthur Smith, John L. Mason, Cornelia M. Chaney, Louisa Truman and Charles H. Johnson, enjoining them from acting as officers of Nehemiah Pasture or interfering with it. The injunction is issued at the suit of the general body of the order, on the ground that the officers of the subordinate lodge do not attend to their duties, and that the money is liable to be wasted.

The Grand Division of the Sons of Temperance of Maryland held its annual session yesterday at Young Men's Christian Association Hall, North Charles street. There was a good attendance of delegates from the counties, and the reports showed the order to be prosperous. Mr. Denison, of Philadelphia, the grand worthy patriarch of North America, and Gen. Wagner, past worthy patriarch of Pennsylvania, were present. For officers of the Grand Division for the ensuing term, John S. Rawlings was re-elected grand patriarch; Robert T. Smith, grand scribe, which place he has held for 40 years. These and the other officers were installed in the afternoon. At night a public meeting was held at Northwestern Tabernacle. The Sons of Temperance are a non-political body, devoted to the promotion of total abstinence.

The Funeral of Mr. Harry Heyward Morris, son of Capt. C. Manigault Morris, took place yesterday morning at St. Paul's Protestant Episcopal Church. Rev. Dr. Hodges conducted the service. The pall-bearers, active and honorary, were youths who had been associates of young Morris. The remains were taken to New York and placed in the family vault at Morrisania. General sympathy was felt for the parents at the loss of a son whose talents gave promise of a bright future. He was born at Caen, in Normandy, and was for some time a student at Eton, the famous school for boys in England. He had just entered Johns Hopkins University, and would have taken a scientific course with the intention of becoming an electrician. He betrayed marked talents for music, and also as a linguist.

One Lawyer Too Many.—A prisoner when placed in the dock of the Criminal Court yesterday to plead had two attorneys entered upon the records of the court as his counsel, Messrs. Ruddell & Hall and Edward I. Clarke. Mr. Wilson M. Cary, court clerk, asked him which he would have to defend him, and he said he had employed Mr. Hall. At this Mr. Clarke offered to retire from the case, and explained to Judge Phelps that he had been employed by some of the prisoner's friends.

Seaman Lost Overboard.—Captain Elijah Bonner, of the barkentine Glad Tidings, reports that while on the voyage from Rio Janeiro to Baltimore, H. Dudegge, seaman, a native of Germany, fell off the jibboom and was lost. He was not missed for about five minutes after he had gone out on the spar. The accident occurred about midnight of August 22, in latitude 8 south, longitude 24 west. The night was very dark and a strong wind was blowing.

Water and the Hog Cholera.—A correspondent writes: "I am inclined to think that hog cholera is largely produced in dry seasons by an insufficiency of good water, and that much of the cholera is really famishing for want of water. This conclusion has been arrived at from careful observation covering a period of ten years, and I think is worthy of having the attention of farmers called to it."

The Steamer Olive, which plies between this city and St. Michael's, broke her shaft while on route to the latter place Tuesday night. The accident occurred in Eastern bay. A schooner towed her in to St. Michael's, where she discharged her passengers and freight, and was towed to the city yesterday by the tug Johnson.

The Baltimore Carbrake Company was incorporated yesterday by Messrs. Wm. J. Adams, Wm. Brumble, Lawrence N. Cox, Chas. F. Chase and Benj. B. Snyder. The capital stock is stated to be $200,000, divided in 20,000 shares. The object is to manufacture and sell products protected by letters patent, and to dispose of patent right.

City Council Caucus.—The caucus of the newly-elected members of the first branch city council has been called for tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock. Mr. Hanway, of the twelfth ward, will be chosen by the caucus for president of the branch, and there will be other changes in the other officers of the branch.

Brief Locals.

It is stated that the New York, Philadelphia and Norfolk Railroad Company have leased the steamer Jane Moseley from the Inland and Seaboard Coasting Company. The steamer will be put on the new route between Cape Charles City and Norfolk until the steamers now being built at Wilmington, Del., for the route are finished.

John Fitzpatrick and Michael McGurgan, the defaulting contractors on a section of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad extension in Delaware, were yesterday held for larceny at Wilmington. It was stated that they could not give bail and would be taken to the prison at New Castle.

A horse belonging to Jas. L. Gaither, 12 South Howard street, and driven by Wm. Porter, was taken with blind staggers at Mosher street and Pennsylvania avenue yes orday, and falling upon an iron railing, lacerated its neck to such an extent that it will probably have to be shot.

The judges of the late municipal election are very slow at sending their certificates to the grand jury that no violation of the laws occurred, and the delinquents are notified that their names will be given to the sheriff.

Edward Hohlbein, of 102 Hillen street, had his hand badly lacerated by a steam saw in Storck's planing mill, No 77 East Monument street, yesterday evening.

Mrs. Susannah Spenner, of Cincinnati, cabin, and fifty steerage passengers sailed on the steamship America yesterday for Bremen.

Wm. Murray walked overboard at 11.30 o'clock last night at the foot of Long dock, but was rescued by police officer Mettee.
